

Eric Brey

Eric Brey begins his third year at Wyoming after spending the previous two years as Assistant Director for Academics and Eligibility at the University of Colorado. At Colorado, Eric worked with football, basketball and tennis, and coordinated the eligibility process for all student-athletes. Eric owns two degrees from the University of Kansas, where he earned his bachelor's in exercise science in 1994 and his master's in sports administration in 1996. He then spent four years as the assistant director of the Achievement Center for Intercollegiate Athletics at Southwest Missouri State University before accepting his position at Colorado. In his position at Wyoming, Eric has responsibility and oversight of the Office of Academic Support including supervision of advisory staff and administrative staff. He monitors the academic performance of student-athletes, as well as coordinating student-athlete eligibility.
